Animal abuse report texas

Logging... If you happen to witness an animal being abused or suspect that an animal has been abandoned, call the City of Dallas for help. During working hours, call Dallas Animal Services at 214-670-8248. If you need help after working hours, please follow these instructions: Call 311, press 1 for English or 2 for Spanish, then 0 for operator. When the operator gets on the line you have to tell them that you are reporting an atrocity case and give them all the information you possibly can. They want your name and phone number in case the cruelty team needs to ask further questions. Your information will be kept confidential. Animal Abuse Repeat offenses of animal cruelty crimes are a rule, not an exception - and there are many times when an investigation into an animal cruelty crime uncovers human-related crimes as well. When officers go to the home to investigate an animal cruelty, they often find evidence of domestic abuse, child neglect, drugs and other dangerous situations. Although you should not try to solve the animal cruelty complaint yourself, there are things you can do to help the case: - Take pictures. Make sure the timestamp function on the camera is enabled if you have one. But only take pictures if you can do it safely and without intrusion. - Document phone calls, complaints, etc. Keep a written log of the dates and times you've called the authorities asking them to investigate. - If you have spoken to the suspected abuser, keep notes at the time, dates, location and topic discussed. If the suspect has threatened you, your family or pets, be sure to include dates and times in the documentation. 1. The actual situation: Consider what you are dealing with. There are some minimum standards that all pet owners should need to meet: Fresh food and water available to the animal(s) Shelter from the elements - sun in summer, rain all year round, cold in winter Sanitary yard free of feces and urine or space sufficient to be free of these. Internet-curing may or may not be illegal in your community - check the city's website for animal codes or call the Animal Services department of the city you report to check. Although affiliation may be legal, the animal should still have access to all of the above items. 2. Complete information: When reporting, you should provide sufficient information about the exact nature of the complaint. Give the relevant authorities the following: Accurate address of the cruelty situation, or at least two crossing streets with a north, south, east or west direction for the location at the intersection. If an apartment complex, includes apartment number and street code or a contact number. The name of the owner if known. Number of animals present Description of race, size and gender as possible Your name and contact phone - mobile phone, home or office phone etc 3. Who can report an atrocity? If a person who wishes to report animal cruelty has standing they live or work in the city and have connections) which is always powerful because they pay taxes or work there and contribute to the tax base. Even if you just pass through, you can still report cruelty as you are a witness to the law being broken. As a citizen of the state, you have the right to be concerned that minimum standards of state law are enforced. You will be taken more seriously if you live or work in a community because when you complain to elected officials, they will have more reason to listen - that's just the reality! 4. Who are the authorities you can contact? The city's Animal Service Division - this can be accessed by calling 311 in the city or by calling 411 information, or by referring to the city's website for that information. The mayor's office City Attorney Your City Council representative All of the above can be accessed by calling 411 information, by referring to the city's website for this information or by referring to a telephone directory. 4.1 Contacting the SPCA of Texas Animal Cruelty Complaints Phone: 214-742-7722 Online: go to Report Abuse (on www.spca.org), fill out the form and email it. The Rescue and Investigation SPCA Rescue & Investigations team is focusing on 8 counties to better respond to animals in need: Dallas, Ellis, Fannin, Grayson, Hunt, Kaufman, Rains and Van Zandt. Texas law protects animals from cruelty and abuse. Your local police officers will be able to help the animal(s) you are concerned about. Report cruelty in Dallas: call 311 Report cruelty outside the city or from wireless: call 214-670-5111 or go to 311 System Web Intake (on 311.dallascityhall.com) to submit an email report. Resort: The last option to try is to report the matter to the media. Even if you don't have contacts in the media, all TV and radio stations have links or forms on their websites to report breaking news or news articles. USE THEM!!!! Also, many journalists accept emails through the station's websites. If you know of a reporter who's made animal stories, search them out on the site, or look for the stations' number in a phone directory or through 411, then call and ask for that reporter. Again, be a squeaky wheel. It works! Alana Edgin | San Angelo SAN ANGELO - Have you seen someone abuse or neglect an animal and wanted to report it, but didn't know where to go or if it would make a difference? In Texas, animal cruelty is a felony and neglect is a misdemeanor and should be reported. How people can help animals in a bad situation-Call local law enforcementTa video or photo evidence if you can, safely and without Confronting a one Behaving violently - like hitting an animal - should be left to police, said West Texas animal welfare group, Concho Valley PAWS, which faced a case July 3 involving a man who beat a German Shepard who was caught on video. That video said more than words could ever ... It has also created an environment where people come forward and speak out against this behavior, said PAWS director Jenie Wilson said. Animal cruelty is a crime in Texas, punishable by up to 10 years in prison and a fine up to $10,000. Children who have committed animal cruelty are required to go to counselling. Misconduct is a misdemeanor to the third crime, when it becomes a crime. This can be punishable by reimbursement, according to humanesociety.org. The penal code applies only to livestock, such as livestock, livestock and wild animals subject to a person's care and control, according to the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. Animals in the circus, in laboratories for testing and wild animals are excluded. Cruelty includes:Torturing an animalFailing to provide food, care or shelter an animalTransport or restrict an animal in a cruel wayKilling, serious injury or poisoning an animalWhich conveys an animal to fight with anotherUse a live animal as a lure in a dog breedTripping a horseInjuring an animal belonging to another personSeriously overworking an animalWhat about federal laws? It's a bipartisan bill that makes its way through the 2019-20 Congressional session called the Preventing Animal Cruelty and Torture Act. The proposal would build on an existing law signed by President Barack Obama in 2010 that criminalized the creation of videos showing torture and killing animals. This bill would make the actions itself, a federal crime in extreme abuse cases involving conduct in which one or more living non-human mammals, birds, reptiles or amphibians are intentionally crushed, burned, drowned, suffocated, eaten or otherwise subjected to serious bodily harm. The Houston SPCA is a nonprofit organization (EIN 74-1287171) 501(c)(3) tax-exempt (EIN 74-1287171). Your donation will be well processed. If you witnessed animal cruelty, report it to your local law enforcement immediately! Remember that the law can not build a case on he said, she said so it is important to document animal abuse with time, date, place, other details, and if possible to get pictures (safe, without trespassing). In a case where a family member abuses animals, you can report the cruelty as an anonymous tip. Studies suggest that those who commit cruelty to animals will usually also abuse children, women, the elderly and family members.
